Qualis Corporation Selected for Air Force Test and Evaluation Center Contract Award

Huntsville, Alabama, October 31, 2017 – Qualis Corporation announced today that it has been selected as a Prime contractor on the Air Force Test and Evaluation Center (AFOTEC) Test Services (ATS) contract. Qualis will provide AFOTEC services and skills across the entire spectrum of engineering and science disciplines. The majority of the work will be conducted side-by-side with AFOTEC’s professional operational testers throughout the United States and across the globe.

“Qualis is delighted to continue our partnership with AFOTEC in support of the Test and Evaluation Center in Albuquerque” said Qualis Chief Executive Officer Elizabeth Morard. “Qualis has worked with AFOTEC on the predecessor Operational Test and Evaluation Services (OTES) contract since 2012. We are very proud and truly honored to have the opportunity to continue to support AFOTEC’s mission in the important work that the Air Force is doing for the nation and for our Warfighters.”

About AFOTEC

As stated in the August 23, 2017 edition of Airman’s Magazine by Maj Gen Matthew Molloy, AFOTEC Commander, “[AFOTEC] is the Air Force’s independent test agency responsible for testing and evaluating, in operationally realistic environments, new systems being developed for Air Force and multi-service use. Maj Gen Molloy further added, “The mission of AFOTEC is both clear and compelling. We test emerging capabilities in operationally relevant environments to inform both the warfighter, as well as national resource decision-making. We’re very passionate about serving that first customer - the warfighter. We ensure that there are no operational surprises when the warfighter takes his weapon system to combat. As independent evaluators and operational testers the AFOTEC team must continually ask the proverbial question of: “Will it work...will it work in a contested environment?”

Qualis Corporation is an industry expert in the Test & Evaluation field, and looks forward to their continued support to this five year contract valued at $93.5M.
